THERE'S STILL HOPE

There are times when hope feels easy—when life is going well, prayers are answered quickly, and everything seems to fall into place. But there are also seasons when hope feels harder to hold onto. When things drag on. When prayers feel unanswered. When the future feels unclear.

And yet, even then, there is still hope.

Not a fragile, “everything will magically work out” kind of hope, but a steady hope rooted in God’s presence with us. Scripture reminds us that we can wait on the Lord and put our hope in His word. That kind of hope doesn’t ignore reality—it stands in the middle of it and trusts that God is still at work.

We’re never promised a life without struggle, but we are promised we won’t face it alone. Hope is often what carries us through the in-between times—when we’re waiting, when we’re tired, when we don’t have clear answers yet.

And so often, hope shows up in small ways: a prayer whispered, a kind word, a moment of peace that doesn’t quite make sense, or the reminder that God hasn’t let go of us.

If you’re in a season where things feel uncertain, hold onto this: there is still hope. Not because everything is figured out, but because God is still faithful.

And sometimes, that’s enough to keep going.

A mother went to wake her son for church one Sunday morning. When she knocked on his door, he said, “I’m not going!” “Why not?” asked his mother. “I’ll give you two good reasons,” he said. “One, they don’t like me. Two, I don’t like them.” His mother replied, “I’ll give you two good reasons why YOU WILL go to church. One, you’re 47 years old. Two, you’re the pastor!”
